Mid Term Examination, 2016-17
Course: B.Tech (CSE), Year: II, Semester: III
Computer Organization (CSE3002)

Time: 1.5 Hrs. Total Marks: 20

Notes:

1. All parts of a question should be answered at one place.
2. Answer should be brief and to-the-point and be supplemented with neat sketches.
3. Any missing or wrong data may be assumed suitably giving proper justification.
4. Figures on the right-hand side margin indicate full marks.

Section A

Note: Attempt All Questions (1x5=5)

I. Define Micro program Sequencer.
II. Enlist the register which connects memory with processing unit.
III. Let SP=000000 in the stack. How many items are there in the stack if Full=0 and Empty=1?
IV. Write reverse polish notation of A+B/(C*(D-E)).
V. Consider a case where 6 –segment pipeline with clock cycle time 10 ns in each sub operation to execute 45 tasks. How much time Pipeline system will take to complete the tasks?

Section B

Note: Attempt any Three Questions (2x3=6)

I. Write a program to evaluate X= A*B(C*D-E)/(F+G) in one and three address instruction formats.
II. Quoting an example explain any four addressing modes used to specify the location of operand.
III. What are the different categories of instructions, and also write the different type of operands may present in an instruction.
IV. Differentiate hard wired and micro programmed control unit?

Section C

Note: Attempt any Three Questions (3x3=9)

I. What is micro operation? Explain the different categories of micro operations with examples.

II. A computer uses a memory unit with 256K words of 32 bits each. A binary instruction code is stored in one word of memory. The instruction has four parts: an indirect bit, an operation code, a register code part to specify one of 64 registers and an address part.

a) How many bits are there in operation code, the register code part and the address part?

b) Draw the instruction format and indicate the number of bits in each part.

c) How many bits are there in data and address input of the memory?

III. Write the sequence of control steps with control signal required for the execution for each of the following instruction:

a) Add the immediate number A to register R_1 and store result in R_1.

b) Add the contents of Memory locations B to R_1 and store result in R_1.

IV. Write short notes on following:

a) Types of Micro-Instruction.

b) Micro-Instruction with Next Address field.

B. Tech – Year I, Semester – III

Industrial Economics Paper Code: MBA5031

Time Allotted: 90 Minutes Max. Marks: 20

Note:

1. Attempt All Questions from Section -A, Any Three Questions from Section- B and Any Three Questions from Section- C. Make a graphical illustration in support of your answer.

Section: A

Note: Attempt All Questions (1 X 5= 5 Marks)

I. If the Total Variable cost is 20 and Total cost is 198, what will be the value of Total fixed cost?

II. Define Delphi Method of demand forecasting.

III. What happens to marginal productivity, if the value of total productivity is maximum?

IV. Define point of Inflection.

V. If Marginal cost is falling throughout, will average cost be necessarily falling? Justify your answer.

Section –B

Note: Attempt Any Three Questions (3 X 2 = 6 Marks)

I. Define Law of variable proportion with graphical illustration.

II. What is meant by Isoquants and budget line? Write down their important characteristics. Show them graphically.

III. If a Production function's coefficient is represented by $\alpha + \beta > 1$, what will be stage of the returns to scale. Justify your answer by graphical illustration.

IV. Explain the relationship between long run average cost and long marginal cost curves.

Section – C

Note: Attempt Any Three Questions (3 X 3 = 9 Marks)

I. What do you mean by Demand Forecasting? Discuss importance of demand forecasting?

II. Long run average cost (LAC) is flatter while short run average cost curve is U-shaped? Justify the statement with graphical illustration.

III. Production manager is unable to change factor inputs in a definite ratio? Discuss under which production function he is working? Justify your answer.

IV. Calculate Total Cost, Marginal cost, Average Variable cost, Average Fixed Cost and Average Total Cost, if Total Fixed Cost is equal to 2000. Show it graphically.

Section A

Note: Attempt All Questions (1x5=5)

I. Write a difference between trivial and non-trivial dependency.

II. The relation book(title, price) contains the titles and prices of different books. Assuming that no two books have the same price, what does the following SQL query list?

Select title from book as B where (select count(*) from book as T where T.price >B.price) < 5.

III. What is the difference between drop and delete?

IV. The following functional dependencies hold for relations R(A, B, C) and S(B, D, E): B->A, A->C
The relation R contains 200 tuples and the relation S contains 100 tuples. What is the maximum number of tuples possible in the natural Join R and S?

V. What are the different types of anomalies in database?

Section B

Note: Attempt any Three Questions (2x3=6)

I. Consider a relational schema R (A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H) on which of the following functional dependencies hold: {A->B, BC->D, E->C, D->A}. What are the candidate keys for R?

II. Consider a relational Schema R(A,B,C,D) and functional dependencies A->B and C->D. Suppose this relation is decomposed into the following two relations: R1 (A, B) and R2 (C, D). Is this decomposition lossless? Is it dependency preserving?

III. Let R = (A,B,C), and let r1 and r2 both be relations on schema R. Give an expression in SQL that is equivalent to each of the following queries.

(a) r1 ∪ r2

(b) r1 ∩ r2

(c) r1 − r2

IV. Explain why 4NF is a normal form more desirable than BCNF.

Section C

Note: Attempt any Three Questions (3x3=9)

I. The following relations keep track of airline flight information:

Flights(flno: integer, from: string, to: string, distance: integer, departs: time, arrives: time, price: real)

Aircraft(aid: integer, aname: string, cruisingrange: integer)

Certified(eid: integer, aid: integer)

Employees(eid: integer, ename: string, salary: integer)

Note that the Employees relation describes pilots and other kinds of employees as well, every pilot is certified for some aircraft, and only pilots are certified to fly.

Write each of the following queries in SQL.

(a) Find the names of pilots certified for some Boeing aircraft.

(b) Display the names of employees who are certified only on aircrafts with cruising range longer than 1000 miles.

(c) Find the aircraft id's of all aircraft that can be used on routes from Los Angeles to Chicago.

(d) Find the names of pilots whose salary is less than the price of the cheapest route from Los Angeles to Honolulu.

II. Consider the Relation R(A, B, C, D, E, G, H) and the FD set

$F = \{AB \rightarrow C, AC \rightarrow B, AD \rightarrow E, B \rightarrow D, BC \rightarrow A, E \rightarrow G\}$

(a) Compute the set of dependencies that hold over the Relation R and write down a minimal cover.

(b) Name the strongest normal form that is not violated by the relation R.

III. Consider the following relation for published books:

BOOK (Book_title, Author_name, Book_type, List_price, Author_affil, Publisher) Author_affil refers to the affiliation of author.

Suppose the following dependencies exist:

Book_title → Publisher, Book_type

Book_type → List_price

Author_name → Author_affil

(a) What normal form is the relation in? Explain your answer.

(b) Apply normalization until you cannot decompose the relations further. State the reasons behind each decomposition.

IV. What are Armstrong's Axioms? Write the role of Armstrong's inference rules in the development of the theory of relational design?

Q 1. State second translation property of Laplace transforms.

Q 2. Define Dirac-Delta function and using it write value of integral

$$\int_0^\infty e^{-4t}\,\delta(t-3)\,dt\,.$$

Q 3. Find the Laplace transform of $[t]$, where $[t]$ is greatest integer less than or equal to t, such that $t \geq 0$.

Q 4. Find the inverse Laplace transform of $\dfrac{e^{-2s}}{\sqrt{s+1}}$

Q 5. Find the inverse Laplace transform of $\dfrac{s^2+2s+6}{s^3}$.

Section : - B

Note :- Attempt Any Three Questions (2x 3 = 6)

Q 1. Evaluate $\int_0^\infty \dfrac{e^{-at}-e^{-bt}}{t}\,dt$, $a>0$, $b>0$, by using Laplace transform.

Q 2. Express the following function into unit step function and find its Laplace transform

$$F(t)=\begin{cases} t^2, & 0<t\leq 2 \\ 4t, & t>2 \end{cases}$$

Q 3. Find the inverse Laplace transform of $\dfrac{s^2-a^2}{(s^2+a^2)^2}$

Q 4. Find the inverse Laplace transform of $\dfrac{s^3}{s^4-a^4}$

Section : - C

Note :- Attempt Any Three Questions (3x 3 = 9)

Q 1. Find the Laplace transform of $\int_0^t t e^{-2t} \sin^3 t \, dt$.

Q 2. Find the Laplace transform of the periodic function

$$f(t) = \begin{cases} \sin \omega t & 0<t<\dfrac{\pi}{\omega} \\ 0 & \dfrac{\pi}{\omega}<t<\dfrac{2\pi}{\omega} \end{cases}$$

Q 3. State convolution theorem and by using it find inverse Laplace-transform of $\dfrac{s^2}{(s^2+a^2)(s^2+b^2)}$

Q 4. Solve the initial value problem by Laplace transform.

$$\frac{d^2y}{dx^2}+2\frac{dy}{dx}+5y=e^{-x}\sin x, \quad \textit{where} \quad y(0)=0, \quad y'(0)=1.$$

Mid-Term Exam (ODD SEMESTER)-2016

Ethics & Values: AHE 3001

Time: 1 ½ Hours Max. Marks: 20

Note: There are four passages in this paper. These are based on course discussion. Carefully read the passages and answer the following questions . Fill all the information in OMR sheet neatly in the blocks. Each question has only ONE CORRECT ANSWER (one among a,b,c,d). No partial marking.

Passage: 1 (1X5=5 Marks)

Ethical philosophy differs from the sciences because it is normative or prescriptive, rather than descriptive. In other words, ethics tell us how we ought to act or what we should do, while the sciences are more likely to observe how things are in nature. There are three areas of emphasis in making moral judgments: 1) Purpose or motive, 2) Act, rule or Maxim, and 3) Results or consequences. Utilitarianism says that the Result or the Consequence of an Act is the real measure of whether it is good or bad. This theory emphasizes Ends over Means. Theories, like this one, that emphasize the results or consequences are called teleological or consequentialist. Jeremy Bentham formulates the theory and argues that Man is under two great masters, pain and pleasure. The great good that we should seek is happiness. (a hedonistic perspective). Those actions whose results increase happiness or diminish pain are good. They have "utility." There are four views of utilitarianism. 1) Consequentialism: The rightness of actions is determined solely by their consequences. 2) Hedonism: Utility is the degree to which an act produces pleasure. Hedonism is the thesis that pleasure or happiness is the good that we seek and that we should seek. 3) Maximalism: A right action produces the greatest good consequences and the least bad. 4) Universalism: The consequences to be considered are those of everyone affected, and everyone equally. There are two formulations of utilitarian theory. One, Principle of Utility: The best action is that which produces the greatest utility. Two, Greatest Happiness: We ought to do that which produces the greatest happiness and least pain for the greatest number of people. There are two types of utilitarianism: 1) Act: An Action is right if and only if it produces the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. Bentham was the originator of this view. 2) Rule: An action is right if and only if it conforms to a set of rules the general acceptance of which would produce the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. If I am to bring the greatest happiness to the greatest number, not putting my own happiness above others, that may lead to a dilemma. I live in a neighborhood where 83% of my neighbors use drugs. I could make them most happy by helping supply them with cheap drugs, but I feel uncomfortable doing that. What should a utilitarian do? Mill argues that we must consider the quality of the happiness, not merely the quantity. For example, some might find happiness with drugs, alcohol and smoking. Others may find happiness working on anti-drug campaign to make the lives beautiful of the people who are suffering from drug consumption. Thus, Mill offers a balanced view of utilitarianism than Bentham. His view creates space for a higher pleasure; in which a human being analyses the pleasures in terms of quality like thinking, reason and judgment. Mill says this is the realization of human spirit , happiness and morality.

Questions:

1) Which of the following statements are true about maximalism and hedonism?
   1. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest good, while hedonism gives importance to pleasure.
   2. Both are views of utilitarianism.
   3. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest pleasures.
   4. Hedonism put emphasis on greatest good

   a) 4 b) 2&3 c) 1&2 d) 1&4

2) What are the areas of emphasis in moral decision making?
   1. The motive of any action.
   2. The act, rule or principles of any action
   3. The results of any action.
   4. The social approval of an action.

   a) 1&4 b)1,2&3 c) 1&2 d)4

3) Which of the following statements are not true about Bentham's utilitarianism?
   1. Man is under two masters, pain and pleasure.
   2. The greatest good that we seek is happiness.
   3. The greatest good that we seek is quality of happiness.
   4. We should maximize pleasure and minimize pain.

   a) 1&2 b) 1,2&4 c)3 d)2

4) Why does Mill's view seem balanced?
   1. It considers higher pleasures.
   2. It assesses pleasure in terms of thinking and judgment.
   3. Seeking quality of happiness is about the realization of human spirit.
   4. It gives space to human faculties of thinking and reason.

   a) 1 b) 1&2 c) 3&4 d)All of the above

5) Which of the following statements are true about act and rule utilitarianism?

1. An Action is right if and only if it produces the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number.
2. An action is right if and only if it conforms to a set of rules the general acceptance of which would produce the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number.
3. An action is right only if it follows some rule.
4. A rule is right if it is followed by a right action.

Passage: 2 (1 X 5=5 marks)

Human beings have been fighting each other since prehistoric times, and people have been discussing the rights and wrongs of it for almost as long. The Ethics of War starts by assuming that war is a bad thing, and should be avoided if possible, but it recognizes that there can be situations when war may be the lesser evil of several bad choices. War is a bad thing because it involves deliberately killing or injuring people, and this is a fundamental wrong - an abuse of the victims' human rights. The purpose of war ethics is to help decide what is right or wrong, both for individuals and countries, and to contribute to debates on public policy, and ultimately to government and individual action. War ethics also leads to the creation of formal codes of war (e.g. The Hague and Geneva conventions), the drafting and implementation of rules of engagement for soldiers, and in the punishment of soldiers and others for war crimes.

Some conditions must be satisfied for a war to be considered just. The war must be for a just cause. It must also be lawfully declared by a lawful authority. More importantly, the intention behind the war must be good and all other ways of resolving the problem should have been tried first.

A war that starts as a Just War may stop being a Just War if the means used to wage it are inappropriate. It should be ensured that innocent people and non-combatants should not be harmed. Similarly only appropriate force should be used. This applies to both the sort of force, and how much force is used. Also internationally agreed conventions regulating war must be obeyed.

Questions :

6) Which of the following statements is/are true?

1. War is a necessary evil in modern society.
2. It is the only solution to political problems.
3. War is sometimes justified.
4. War is easily avoidable

a) 1&4 b) 1&2 c) 1&3 d)2&4

7) War Ethics deals with
1. The strategies used to win a war
2. The political effects of the war
3. The justification and intention behind the war
4. The way in which a war is to be conducted

a) 1&4 b) 2&3 c) 3&4 d)2&4

8) A just war should meet the following criteria :
1. The reason should be to maintain balance of power
2. The declaration should have been made by a lawful authority
3. It should not lead to environmental damage
4. The war should be against an unjust power.

a) 1&2 b)3&4 c) 1&3 d) 2&4

9) Since human societies have been fighting each other for a long time,
1. War is a natural law.
2. War should be acceptable to all
3. War should be the last resort to resolve issues.
4. To aim for Peace is not a practical solution.

a)1&4 b)2&3 c)1&3 d) 3

10) In the course of a legitimate war ,
1. Proportionality of force used cannot be overlooked
2. International conventions are binding.
3. Civilian loss is avoidable but necessary
4. No debate about the ethicality of war is possible.

Passage: 3 (1x5 =5 marks)

There is nothing that an individual demands more than a respect for one's freedom. Theories of individual rights make the point clear that each individual has a separate life and different preferences. Individuals' preferences should not be sacrificed for either larger social purposes or the common good. We do not only desire but also value freedom. By the very human nature we like freedom and do not want to live in the restrictions of laws and rules. Nevertheless, we desire those minimum laws and rules which actually protect ourselves from others. Libertarians define freedom in such a way that freedom for individuals is all or nothing. In other words, they argue individuals must be given complete freedom. However, Libertarians differentiate between individual and collective (social) freedom. According to libertarians, there should be no limitations on individual freedom. However, since collective freedom is important, one is free to the extent that one must not harm the other. Most interesting feature of the Libertarians' idea of freedom is that one has got complete freedom in a very precise sense that one can, if one wishes so, harm himself or herself. Libertarians advocate the minimal state theory.

What this theory simply means is that state should not limit the liberty of individuals or a government should not regulate the individuals' choices and actions by propounding certain restrictions and laws. Individuals have got fundamental right to liberty. Government has got only limited role to play in individuals' lives, and that is to protect them from any kind of external threat like theft, fraud, and corruption. Libertarians object to the excessive use of the powers of government in the way it intervene in individuals' lives and coerce them to follow certain laws. There are three such objections by Libertarians against the governments. First, government should not make paternalistic laws. Second, government should not make laws for the morals legislation of individuals' lives. Third, government should not redistribute wealth by putting taxes on individuals wealth . By paternalistic laws we mean such laws which are actually for the individuals' safety and protection like the helmet, seatbelt driving safety laws, and the pension laws. Libertarians argue that by enforcing such laws on an individual, a government undermines his or her risk taking ability. Libertarians believe that government should not propose a certain kind of values or principles for individuals' lives. An individual must be given full freedom to choose his or her own patterns and ways to live the life. However, Libertarians put one condition on this that one's moral choices must not affect the others. On the issue of taxation, Libertarians contend the government's claim of social benefit and say that by putting taxes on individuals' income, government takes away the ownership of an individual. The amount we pay as taxes becomes slavery for an individual. What we earn through our labor talent or skill is our self expression. In this way, a self becomes slave and one's labor becomes forced labor. This is the reason governments should not redistribute the wealth by following the mechanism of taxation. However, governments can have a check on individuals' property rights. A government must insure fair dealings amongst the individuals in terms of the initial holding of property, justice in acquisition and transfer of money, and other property rights. Libertarians by limiting the excessive role of government maintain: A government should respect an individual's personal life. The life of an individual must be respected as an end and never as means. Respect for an individual's life is independent of collective common goods. And, by respecting an individual a libertarian simply means: government should not interfere in individuals' personal life for accomplishing the purposes of society at large.

Questions:

11) Why do Libertarians object to Paternalistic laws?

1. Such laws undermine risk taking ability of an individual.

2. Individuals do not have freedom to break such laws.
3. Such laws are not frequently obeyed.
4. Such laws try to protect individuals and maintain that individuals should not misuse freedom by harming themselves.

a) 1&2 b) 1&4 c) 3 d) 3&4

12) What is the argument of Libertarians?

1. Individual freedom is all or nothing.
2. Liberty is the fundamental right of an individual.
3. An individual cannot harm oneself.
4. Individual freedom is limited only in the sense that one is not free to harm others.

a) 1 b)1, 2 &4 c)3 d) 1&2

13) What do we mean by the Moral Legislation?

1. Prescribing certain values for individuals to practice.
2. Limiting certain choices of individuals which disturb socio-cultural values.
3. Providing complete freedom to individuals.
4. Allowing people to adopt unconventional ways of living

a) 3&4 b) 1&2 c)3 d) 2

14) Why should a government not put taxes on individual's income?

1. It takes ownership of an individual.
2. One's profession becomes one's choice.
3. Money is precious for an individual's life.
4. The amount we pay as tax is a kind of forced labor

a)2 b)1&2 c)1&3 d)1&4

15) On what ground Libertarians would allow Kidney selling and Euthanasia (assisted suicide)?

1. An individual has complete freedom of choice
2. Everyone owns himself or herself.
3. We should respect one's personal decision if it does not harm any other.
4. We own others

Passage: 4 (1x5 = 5 marks)

The moral side of murder cannot be legally defended. However, morally it can be challenged from the viewpoint of utilitarianism. Sometimes what seems to be absolutely immoral seems to be the only way to be moral. The result is a clash between morality and necessity. And, it raises a question: Can we exonerate someone from the guilt if that person has acted out of necessity? Queen Vs Dudley and Stephens (also known as Richard Parker case) is one of the most debated cases in the law schools, which established an example, in the British common law, that necessity is not a defense for a charge of murder.

The English yacht Mignonette was to be transported to Australia with crew of four: Thomas Dudley, the captain; Edwin Stephens; Edmund Brooks; and Richard Parker, the cabin boy. As you already know, Dudley and Stephens went for trial, while Brooke turned a witness. The judge had to decide whether the killing and cannibalism done by the three on life-boat for saving their lives was justified. Stephenson argued that it was the only way out and was an unavoidable necessary action. He reasoned that out of necessity to save three lives, Richard Parker was killed.

When Thomas Dudley, the captain, was asked why he killed Parker, he replied that it was done because Parker was an orphan and had become so ill that he would have died anyway. He argued that since others had families and Parker had none, Parker's death would not affect anybody while a lot of people would have been affected by the death of any of the other three. Since someone had to die in this scenario, Parker was the right candidate to be killed.

Judge rejected the argument of necessity on the ground that there was no guarantee of rescue when the killing took place and so necessity cannot be the reason in view of the uncertainty surrounding the situation.

The arguments presented by the Dudley and Stephenson based on maximum life saving, survival, necessity and life defense was not sufficient to excuse them from the charges of murder and cannibalism. The jury decided the death sentence for both Dudley & Stephenson but that was later changed into imprisonment by the interference of the crown. However the case offers a thrilling moral debate on the point whether necessity outweighs morality.

One thing that is obvious is that killing Richard Parker in the manner that Dudley and Stephenson did, was against any sense of morality as Parker was killed against his free will. Parker had not consented at all and it was not his choice. But even if Parker had consented to sacrifice his life, would it make the action right ? There are theorists who are categorical on the question of right and wrong when human life is concerned. They strongly maintain that the value of life is not comparable (it is an end in itself) and cannot be sacrificed on the basis of maximum happiness of maximum number. They advocate a "duty based on moral law" view of morality. Morality for them is not just a matter of utility. They argue that life is valuable in itself. It does not increase or decrease by the numbers of people associated with it or not. For them Parker's life was equally important. For such theorists morality does not depend on the consequences. They locate the morality in the nature of an action. The moral worth of an action according to them lies in the very nature of an action. Hence, they would condemn the case of cannibalism no matter what reason is given for it, necessity or utility, as none of them is beyond the reach of morality. Necessity has meaning only in a moral framework and it means it has to be moral necessity and not an ordinary necessity.

Questions:

16) How was argument of necessity disqualified in this case?

1) Because Dudley and Stephenson were not sure about rescue.
2) Dudley and Stephenson had exact idea about the rescue.
3) Stephenson killed Parker in the view of surety.
4) Because necessity cannot be proved in the view of uncertainty.

a) 1&4 b)1&2 c)3&4 d)2&3

17) Dudley & Stephenson could not defend the moral side of murder:

1) Because argument from maximum lives saving failed.
2) There was uncertainty regarding the rescue.
3) The argument from necessity was disqualified.
4) They showed a spirit of sacrifice in a difficult situation

a)1&4 b)1,2 &3 c)3&4 d)2

18) Which of the following arguments were not offered by Dudley & Stephenson in his defense?

1. The argument from maximum lives saving angle.
2. The argument from uncertainty.
3. The argument from necessity.
4. The argument from sacrifice

a)2 b) 1&3 c) 2&4 d) 4

19) What does the term "necessity", mean in this passage?

Passage:1 (1x5 marks=5 Marks)

The moral side of murder cannot be legally defended. However, morally it can be challenged from the viewpoint of utilitarianism. Sometimes what seems to be absolutely immoral seems to be the only way to be moral. The result is a clash between the morality and the necessity. And, it raises a question: Can we exonerate someone from the guilt if that person has acted out of necessity? Queen Vs Dudley and Stephens (also known as Richard Parker case) is one of the most debated cases in the law schools, which established an example, in the British common law, that necessity is not a defense for a charge of murder.

The English yacht Mignonette was to be transported to Australia with crew of four: Thomas Dudley, the captain; Edwin Stephens; Edmund Brooks; and Richard Parker, the cabin boy. As you already know, Dudley and Stephens went for trial, while Brooke turned a witness. The judge had to decide whether the killing and cannibalism done by the three on life-boat for saving their lives was justified. Stephenson argued that it was the only way out and was an unavoidable necessary action. He reasoned that out of necessity to save three lives, Richard Parker was killed. When Thomas Dudley, the captain, was asked why he killed Parker, he replied that it was done because Parker was an orphan and had become so ill that he would have died anyway. He argued that since others had families and Parker had none, Parker's death would not affect anybody while a lot of people would have been affected by the death of any of the other three. Since someone had to die in this scenario, Parker was the right candidate to be killed.

Judge rejected the argument of necessity on the ground that there was no guarantee of rescue when the killing took place and so necessity cannot be the reason in view of the uncertainty surrounding the situation.

The arguments presented by the Dudley and Stephenson based on maximum life saving, survival, necessity and life defense was not sufficient to excuse them from the charges of murder and cannibalism. The jury decided the death sentence for both Dudley & Stephenson but that was later changed into imprisonment by the interference of the crown. However the case offers a thrilling moral debate on the point whether necessity outweighs morality.

One thing that is obvious is that killing Richard Parker in the manner that Dudley and Stephenson did, was against any sense of morality as Parker was killed against his free will. Parker had not consented at all and it was not his choice. But even if Parker had consented to sacrifice his life, would it make the action right ? There are theorists who are categorical on the question of right and wrong when human life is concerned. They strongly maintain that the value of life is not comparable (it is an end in itself) and cannot be sacrificed on the basis of maximum happiness of maximum number. They advocate a "duty based on moral law" view of morality. Morality for them is not just a matter of utility. They argue that life is valuable in itself. It does not increase or decrease by the numbers of people associated with it or not. For them Parker's life was equally important. For such theorists morality does not depend on the consequences. They locate the morality in the nature of an action. The moral worth of an action according to them lies in the very nature of an action. Hence, they would condemn the case of cannibalism no matter what reason is given for it, necessity or utility, as none of them is beyond the reach of morality. Necessity has meaning only in a moral framework and it means it has to be moral necessity and not an ordinary necessity.

Questions:

1) How was argument of necessity disqualified in this case?
   1) Because Dudley and Stephenson were not sure about rescue.

Passage: 2 (1 X 5=5 marks)

Ethical philosophy differs from the sciences because it is normative or prescriptive, rather than descriptive. In other words, ethics tell us how we ought to act or what we should do, while the sciences are more likely to observe how things are in nature. There are three areas of emphasis in making moral judgments: 1) Purpose or motive, 2) Act, rule or Maxim, and 3) Results or consequences. Utilitarianism says that the Result or the Consequence of an Act is the real measure of whether it is good or bad. This theory emphasizes Ends over Means. Theories, like this one, that emphasize the results or consequences are called teleological or consequentialist. Jeremy Bentham formulates the theory and argues that Man is under two great masters, pain and pleasure. The great good that we should seek is happiness. (a hedonistic perspective). Those actions whose results increase happiness or diminish pain are good. They have "utility." There are four views of utilitarianism. 1) Consequentialism: The rightness of actions is determined solely by their consequences. 2) Hedonism: Utility is the degree to which an act produces pleasure. Hedonism is the thesis that pleasure or happiness is the good that we seek and that we should seek. 3) Maximalism: A right action produces the greatest good consequences and the least bad. 4) Universalism: The consequences to be considered are those of everyone affected, and everyone equally. There are two formulations of utilitarian theory. One, Principle of Utility: The best action is that which produces the greatest utility. Two, Greatest Happiness: We ought to do that which produces the greatest happiness and least pain for the greatest number of people. There are two types of utilitarianism: 1) Act: An Action is right if and only if it produces the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. Bentham was the originator of this view. 2) Rule: An action is right if and only if it conforms to a set of rules the general acceptance of which would produce the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. If I am to bring the greatest happiness to the greatest number, not putting my own happiness above others, that may lead to a dilemma. I live in a neighborhood where 83% of my neighbors use drugs. I could make them most happy by helping supply them with cheap drugs, but I feel uncomfortable doing that. What should a utilitarian do? Mill argues that we must consider the quality of the happiness, not merely the quantity. For example, some might find happiness with drugs, alcohol and smoking. Others may find happiness working on anti-drug campaign to make the lives beautiful of the people who are suffering from drug consumption. Thus, Mill offers a balanced view of utilitarianism than Bentham. His view creates space for a higher pleasure; in which a human being analyses the pleasures in terms of quality like thinking, reason and judgment. Mill says this is the realization of human spirit , happiness and morality.

Questions:

6) Which of the following statements are true about maximalism and hedonism?

1. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest good, while hedonism gives importance to pleasure.
2. Both are views of utilitarianism.
3. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest pleasures.
4. Hedonism put emphasis on greatest good

Passage: 3 (1x5 =5 marks)

Human beings have been fighting each other since prehistoric times, and people have been discussing the rights and wrongs of it for almost as long. The Ethics of War starts by assuming that war is a bad thing, and should be avoided if possible, but it recognizes that there can be situations when war may be the lesser evil of several bad choices. War is a bad thing because it involves deliberately killing or injuring people, and this is a fundamental wrong - an abuse of the victims' human rights. The purpose of war ethics is to help decide what is right or wrong, both for individuals and countries, and to contribute to debates on public policy, and ultimately to government and individual action. War ethics also leads to the creation of formal codes of war (e.g. The Hague and Geneva conventions), the drafting and implementation of rules of engagement for soldiers, and in the punishment of soldiers and others for war crimes.

Some conditions must be satisfied for a war to be considered just. The war must be for a just cause. It must also be lawfully declared by a lawful authority. More importantly, the intention behind the war must be good and all other ways of resolving the problem should have been tried first.

A war that starts as a Just War may stop being a Just War if the means used to wage it are inappropriate. It should be ensured that innocent people and non-combatants should not be harmed. Similarly only appropriate force should be used. This applies to both the sort of force, and how much force is used. Also internationally agreed conventions regulating war must be obeyed.

Questions :

11) Which of the following statements is/are true?

1. War is a necessary evil in modern society.
2. It is the only solution to political problems.
3. War is sometimes justified.
4. War is easily avoidable

12) War Ethics deals with

2. The political effects of the war
3. The justification and intention behind the war
4. The way in which a war is to be conducted

a) 1&4 b) 2&3 c) 3&4 d)2&4

13) A just war should meet the following criteria :
1. The reason should be to maintain balance of power
2. The declaration should have been made by a lawful authority
3. It should not lead to environmental damage
4. The war should be against an unjust power.

a) 1&2 b)3&4 c) 1&3 d) 2&4

14) Since human societies have been fighting each other for a long time,
1. War is a natural law.
2. War should be acceptable to all
3. War should be the last resort to resolve issues.
4. To aim for Peace is not a practical solution.

15) In the course of a legitimate war ,
1. Proportionality of force used cannot be overlooked
2. International conventions are binding.

Passage: 4 (1x5 = 5 marks)

There is nothing that an individual demands more than a respect for one's freedom. Theories of individual rights make the point clear that each individual has a separate life and different preferences. Individuals' preferences should not be sacrificed for either larger social purposes or the common good. We do not only desire but also value freedom. By the very human nature we like freedom and do not want to live in the restrictions of laws and rules. Nevertheless, we desire those minimum laws and rules which actually protect ourselves from others. Libertarians define freedom in such a way that freedom for individuals is all or nothing. In other words, they argue individuals must be given complete freedom. However, Libertarians differentiate between individual and collective (social) freedom. According to libertarians, there should be no limitations on individual freedom. However, since collective freedom is important, one is free to the extent that one must not harm the other. Most interesting feature of the Libertarians' idea of freedom is that one has got complete freedom in a very precise sense that one can, if one wishes so, harm himself or herself. Libertarians advocate the minimal state theory.

What this theory simply means is that state should not limit the liberty of individuals or a government should not regulate the individuals' choices and actions by propounding certain restrictions and laws. Individuals have got fundamental right to liberty. Government has got only limited role to play in individuals' lives, and that is to protect them from any kind of external threat like theft, fraud, and corruption. Libertarians object to the excessive use of the powers of government in the way it intervene in individuals' lives and coerce them to follow certain laws. There are three such objections by Libertarians against the governments. First, government should not make paternalistic laws. Second, government should not make laws for the morals legislation of individuals' lives. Third, government should not redistribute wealth by putting taxes on individuals wealth . By paternalistic laws we mean such laws which are actually for the individuals' safety and protection like the helmet, seatbelt driving safety laws, and the pension laws. Libertarians argue that by enforcing such laws on an individual, a government undermines his or her risk taking ability. Libertarians believe that government should not propose a certain kind of values or principles for individuals' lives. An individual must be given full freedom to choose his or her own patterns and ways to live the life. However, Libertarians put one condition on this that one's moral choices must not affect the others. On the issue of taxation, Libertarians contend the government's claim of social benefit and say that by putting taxes on individuals' income, government takes away the ownership of an individual. The amount we pay as taxes becomes slavery for an individual. What we earn through our labor talent or skill is our self expression. In this way, a self becomes slave and one's labor becomes forced labor. This is the reason governments should not redistribute the wealth by following the mechanism of taxation. However, governments can have a check on individuals' property rights. A government must insure fair dealings amongst the individuals in terms of the initial holding of property, justice in acquisition and transfer of money, and other property rights. Libertarians by limiting the excessive role of government maintain: A government should respect an individual's personal life. The life of an individual must be respected as an end and never as means. Respect for an individual's life is independent of collective common goods. And, by respecting an individual a libertarian simply means: government should not interfere in individuals' personal life for accomplishing the purposes of society at large.

Questions:

16) Why do Libertarians object to Paternalistic laws?

1. Such laws undermine risk taking ability of an individual.
2. Individuals do not have freedom to break such laws.
3. Such laws are not frequently obeyed.
4. Such laws try to protect individuals and maintain that individuals should not misuse freedom by harming themselves.

Passage: 4 (1x5 = 5 marks)

Ethical philosophy differs from the sciences because it is normative or prescriptive, rather than descriptive. In other words, ethics tell us how we ought to act or what we should do, while the sciences are more likely to observe how things are in nature. There are three areas of emphasis in making moral judgments: 1) Purpose or motive, 2) Act, rule or Maxim, and 3) Results or consequences. Utilitarianism says that the Result or the Consequence of an Act is the real measure of whether it is good or bad. This theory emphasizes Ends over Means. Theories, like this one, that emphasize the results or consequences are called teleological or consequentialist. Jeremy Bentham formulates the theory and argues that Man is under two great masters, pain and pleasure. The great good that we should seek is happiness. (a hedonistic perspective). Those actions whose results increase happiness or diminish pain are good. They have "utility." There are four views of utilitarianism. 1) Consequentialism: The rightness of actions is determined solely by their consequences. 2) Hedonism: Utility is the degree to which an act produces pleasure. Hedonism is the thesis that pleasure or happiness is the good that we seek and that we should seek. 3) Maximalism: A right action produces the greatest good consequences and the least bad. 4) Universalism: The consequences to be considered are those of everyone affected, and everyone equally. There are two formulations of utilitarian theory. One, Principle of Utility: The best action is that which produces the greatest utility. Two, Greatest Happiness: We ought to do that which produces the greatest happiness and least pain for the greatest number of people. There are two types of utilitarianism: 1) Act: An Action is right if and only if it produces the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. Bentham was the originator of this view. 2) Rule: An action is right if and only if it conforms to a set of rules the general acceptance of which would produce the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number. If I am to bring the greatest happiness to the greatest number, not putting my own happiness above others, that may lead to a dilemma. I live in a neighborhood where 83% of my neighbors use drugs. I could make them most happy by helping supply them with cheap drugs, but I feel uncomfortable doing that. What should a utilitarian do? Mill argues that we must consider the quality of the happiness, not merely the quantity. For example, some might find happiness with drugs, alcohol and smoking. Others may find happiness working on anti-drug campaign to make the lives beautiful of the people who are suffering from drug consumption. Thus, Mill offers a balanced view of utilitarianism than Bentham. His view creates space for a higher pleasure; in which a human being analyses the pleasures in terms of quality like thinking, reason and judgment. Mill says this is the realization of human spirit , happiness and morality.

Questions:

16) Which of the following statements are true about maximalism and hedonism?

1. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest good, while hedonism gives importance to pleasure.
2. Both are views of utilitarianism.
3. Maximalism puts emphasis on greatest pleasures.
4. Hedonism put emphasis on greatest good

3. The greatest good that we seek is quality of happiness.
4. We should maximize pleasure and minimize pain.

a) 1&2 b) 1,2&4 c)3 d)2

19) Why does Mill's view seem balanced?

1. It considers higher pleasures.
2. It assesses pleasure in terms of thinking and judgment.
3. Seeking quality of happiness is about the realization of human spirit.
4. It gives space to human faculties of thinking and reason.

a) 1 b) 1&2 c) 3&4 d)All of the above

20) Which of the following statements are true about act and rule utilitarianism?

1. An Action is right if and only if it produces the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number.
2. An action is right if and only if it conforms to a set of rules the general acceptance of which would produce the greatest balance of pleasure over pain for the greatest number.
3. An action is right only if it follows some rule.

Passage: 1 (1X5=5 Marks)

There is nothing that an individual demands more than a respect for one's freedom. Theories of individual rights make the point clear that each individual has a separate life and different preferences. Individuals' preferences should not be sacrificed for either larger social purposes or the common good. We do not only desire but also value freedom. By the very human nature we like freedom and do not want to live in the restrictions of laws and rules. Nevertheless, we desire those minimum laws and rules which actually protect ourselves from others. Libertarians define freedom in such a way that freedom for individuals is all or nothing. In other words, they argue individuals must be given complete freedom. However, Libertarians differentiate between individual and collective (social) freedom. According to libertarians, there should be no limitations on individual freedom. However, since collective freedom is important, one is free to the extent that one must not harm the other. Most interesting feature of the Libertarians' idea of freedom is that one has got complete freedom in a very precise sense that one can, if one wishes so, harm himself or herself. Libertarians advocate the minimal state theory.

What this theory simply means is that state should not limit the liberty of individuals or a government should not regulate the individuals' choices and actions by propounding certain restrictions and laws. Individuals have got fundamental right to liberty. Government has got only limited role to play in individuals' lives, and that is to protect them from any kind of external threat like theft, fraud, and corruption. Libertarians object to the excessive use of the powers of government in the way it intervene in individuals' lives and coerce them to follow certain laws. There are three such objections by Libertarians against the governments. First, government should not make paternalistic laws. Second, government should not make laws for the morals legislation of individuals' lives. Third, government should not redistribute wealth by putting taxes on individuals wealth . By paternalistic laws we mean such laws which are actually for the individuals' safety and protection like the helmet, seatbelt driving safety laws, and the pension laws. Libertarians argue that by enforcing such laws on an individual, a government undermines his or her risk taking ability. Libertarians believe that government should not propose a certain kind of values or principles for individuals' lives. An individual must be given full freedom to choose his or her own patterns and ways to live the life. However, Libertarians put one condition on this that one's moral choices must not affect the others. On the issue of taxation, Libertarians contend the government's claim of social benefit and say that by putting taxes on individuals' income, government takes away the ownership of an individual. The amount we pay as taxes becomes slavery for an individual. What we earn through our labor talent or skill is our self expression. In this way, a self becomes slave and one's labor becomes forced labor. This is the reason governments should not redistribute the wealth by following the mechanism of taxation. However, governments can have a check on individuals' property rights. A government must insure fair dealings amongst the individuals in terms of the initial holding of property, justice in acquisition and transfer of money, and other property rights. Libertarians by limiting the excessive role of government maintain: A government should respect an individual's personal life. The life of an individual must be respected as an end and never as means. Respect for an individual's life is independent of collective common goods. And, by respecting an individual a libertarian simply means: government should not interfere in individuals' personal life for accomplishing the purposes of society at large.

Questions:

1) Why do Libertarians object to Paternalistic laws?

1. Such laws undermine risk taking ability of an individual.
2. Individuals do not have freedom to break such laws.
3. Such laws are not frequently obeyed.
4. Such laws try to protect individuals and maintain that individuals should not misuse freedom by harming themselves

2) What is the argument of Libertarians?

1. Individual freedom is all or nothing.
2. Liberty is the fundamental right of an individual.
3. An individual cannot harm oneself.
4. Individual freedom is limited only in the sense that one is not free to harm others.

a) 1 b)1, 2 &4 c)3 d) 1&2

3) What do we mean by Moral Legislation?

1. Prescribing certain values for individuals to practice.
2. Limiting certain choices of individuals which disturb socio-cultural values.
3. Providing complete freedom to individuals.
4. Allowing people to adopt unconventional ways of living

a) 3&4 b) 1&2 c)3 d) 2

4) Why should a government not put taxes on individual's income?

1. It takes ownership of an individual.

Passage: 2 (1 X 5=5 marks)

The moral side of murder cannot be legally defended. However, morally it can be challenged from the viewpoint of utilitarianism. Sometimes what seems to be absolutely immoral seems to be the only way to be moral. The result is a clash between morality and necessity. And, it raises a question: Can we exonerate someone from the guilt if that person has acted out of necessity? Queen Vs Dudley and Stephens (also known as Richard Parker case) is one of the most debated cases in the law schools, which established an example, in the British common law, that necessity is not a defense for a charge of murder.

The English yacht Mignonette was to be transported to Australia with crew of four: Thomas Dudley, the captain; Edwin Stephens; Edmund Brooks; and Richard Parker, the cabin boy. As you already know, Dudley and Stephens went for trial, while Brooke turned a witness. The judge had to decide whether the killing and cannibalism done by the three on life-boat for saving their lives was justified. Stephenson argued that it was the only way out and was an unavoidable but necessary action. He reasoned that out of necessity to save three lives, Richard Parker was killed.

When Thomas Dudley, the captain, was asked why he killed Parker, he replied that it was done because Parker was an orphan and had become so ill that he would have died anyway. He argued that since others had families and Parker had none, Parker's death would not affect anybody while a lot of people would have been affected by the death of any of the other three. Since someone had to die in this scenario, Parker was the right candidate to be killed.

Judge rejected the argument of necessity on the ground that there was no guarantee of rescue when the killing took place and so necessity cannot be the reason in view of the uncertainty surrounding the situation.

The arguments presented by the Dudley and Stephenson based on maximum life saving, survival, necessity and life defense was not sufficient to excuse them from the charges of murder and cannibalism. The jury decided the death sentence for both Dudley & Stephenson but that was later changed into imprisonment by the interference of the crown. However the case offers a thrilling moral debate on the point whether necessity outweighs morality.

One thing that is obvious is that killing Richard Parker in the manner that Dudley and Stephenson did, was against any sense of morality as Parker was killed against his free will. Parker had not consented at all and it was not his choice. But even if Parker had consented to sacrifice his life, would it make the action right ? There are theorists who are categorical on the question of right and wrong when human life is concerned. They strongly maintain that the value of life is not comparable (it is an end in itself) and cannot be sacrificed on the basis of maximum happiness of maximum number. They advocate a "duty based on moral law" view of morality. Morality for them is not just a matter of utility. They argue that life is valuable in itself. It does not increase or decrease by the numbers of people associated with it or not. For them Parker's life was equally important. For such theorists morality does not depend on the consequences. They locate the morality in the nature of an action. The moral worth of an action according to them lies in the very nature of an action. Hence, they would condemn the case of cannibalism no matter what reason is given for it, necessity or utility, as none of them is beyond the reach of morality. Necessity has meaning only in a moral framework and it means it has to be moral necessity and not an ordinary necessity.

Questions:

6) How was argument of necessity disqualified in this case?

1) Because Dudley and Stephenson were not sure about rescue.
2) Dudley and Stephenson had exact idea about the rescue.
3) Stephenson killed Parker in the view of surety.

4) Because necessity cannot be proved in the view of uncertainty.

7) Dudley & Stephenson could not defend the moral side of murder:

1) Because argument from maximum lives saving failed.
2) There was uncertainty regarding the rescue.

Passage: 4 (1x5 = 5 marks)

Human beings have been fighting each other since prehistoric times, and people have been discussing the rights and wrongs of it for almost as long. The Ethics of War starts by assuming that war is a bad thing, and should be avoided if possible, but it recognizes that there can be situations when war may be the lesser evil of several bad choices. War is a bad thing because it involves deliberately killing or injuring people, and this is a fundamental wrong - an abuse of the victims' human rights. The purpose of war ethics is to help decide what is right or wrong, both for individuals and countries, and to contribute to debates on public policy, and ultimately to government and individual action. War ethics also leads to the creation of formal codes of war (e.g. The Hague and Geneva conventions), the drafting and implementation of rules of engagement for soldiers, and in the punishment of soldiers and others for war crimes.Some conditions must be satisfied for a war to be

The cause of women has suffered more when women have been at the helm of the affairs. The people who have been fighting for the cause, since the inception of this gender equality debate, are not only women but men as well. The men have also been the victims of domestic violence. 1. Recognize the topic statement. Give reasons for the same:
According to the data given by the Central Government, in an affidavit to the Supreme Court of India, more than 60% builders have not delivered the projects on time. This has caused a delay in the delivery of the flats to the customers who have already paid more than 80% of the cost. The common people have no power to go against the powerful builders. They have to accept the dictatorial attitude of these politically connected builders. There are around 20 projects in the NCR (national capital region) which were to be handed over to the customers by 2013; but they are still far from being built completely. Shreya Verma, senior advocate, at the Supreme Court appearing for the petitioner, Dr. Shreyash Lokhande presented a report highlighting a nexus between the politicians and the government officials. She was quoted saying "the government itself is responsible for such things". The builders in India have taken great advantage of the simplicity of Indian customers with the help of rampant corruption in political system of the country.

Read the passages carefully and answer the questions. (Q 31-40)

Book clubs are a great way to meet new friends or keep in touch with old ones, while keeping up on your reading and participating in lively and intellectually stimulating discussions. If you're interested in starting a book club, you should consider the following options and recommendations. The first thing you'll need are members. Before recruiting, think carefully about how many people you want to participate and also what the club's focus will be. For example, some book clubs focus exclusively on fiction, others read nonfiction. Some are even more specific, focusing only on a particular genre such as mysteries, science fiction, or romance. Others have a more flexible and open focus. All of these possibilities can make for a great club, but it is important to decide on a focus at the outset so the guidelines will be clear to the group and prospective member. After setting the basic parameters, recruitment can begin. Notify friends and family, advertise in the local newspaper, and hang flyers on bulletin boards in local stores, colleges, libraries, and bookstores. When enough people express interest, schedule a kick-off meeting during which decisions will be made about specific guidelines that will ensure the club runs smoothly. This meeting will need to establish where the group will meet (rotating homes or a public venue such as a library or coffee shop); how often the group will meet, and on what day of the week and at what time; how long the meetings will be; how books will be chosen and by whom; who will lead the group (if anyone); and whether refreshments will be served and if so, who will supply them. By the end of this meeting, these guidelines should be set and a book selection and date for the first official meeting should be finalized. Planning and running a book club is not without challenges, but when a book club is run effectively, the experience can be extremely rewarding for everyone involved.

31. According to the passage, when starting a book club, the first thing a person should do is
    A. hang flyers in local establishments.
    B. put an ad in a local newspaper.
    C. decide on the focus and size of the club.
    D. decide when and where the group will meet.
    E. None of the above.
32. Which of the following is NOT something that successful book clubs should do?
    A. focus exclusively on one genre
    B. have guidelines about where and when to meet
    C. have a focus
    D. decide how to choose and who will choose book selections
    E. None of the above.
33. Which of the following would NOT be covered during the book club's kick-off meeting?
    A. deciding on whether refreshments will be served.
    B. discussing and/or appointing a leader.
    C. choosing the club's first selection.
    D. identifying what kinds of books or genre will be the club's focus.
    E. None of the above.
34. A good title for this passage would be
    A. Book Clubs: A Great Way to Make New Friends
    B. Starting a Successful Book Club: A Guide
    C. Five Easy Steps to Starting a Successful Book Club
    D. Reading in Groups: Sharing Knowledge, Nurturing Friendships
    E. None of the above.

35. Which of the following inferences can be drawn from the passage?
    A. Smaller groups are better for a variety of reasons.
    B. The social aspect of book clubs is more important than the intellectual.
    C. Starting your own book club is better than joining an existing one.
    D. When starting and running a book club, a casual approach is risky.
    E. None of the above.

Billie Holiday died a few weeks ago. I have been unable until now to write about her, but since she will survive many who receive longer obituaries, a short delay in one small appreciation will not harm her or us. When she died we - the musicians, critics, all who were ever transfixed by the most heart-rending voice of the past generation - grieved bitterly. There was no reason to. Few people pursued self-destruction more whole-heartedly than she, and when the pursuit was at an end, at the age of forty-four, she had turned herself into a physical and artistic wreck. Some of us tried gallantly to pretend otherwise, taking comfort in the occasional moments when she still sounded like a ravaged echo of her greatness. Others had not even the heart to see and listen any more.. Her physical death called, if anything, for relief rather than sorrow. What sort of middle age would she have faced without the voice to earn money for her drinks and fixes, without the looks 'and in her day she was hauntingly beautiful' to attract the men she needed, without business sense, without anything but the disinterested worship of ageing men who had heard and seen her in her glory?

She was the Puccini heroine among blues singers, or rather among jazz singers, for though she sang a cabaret version of the blues incomparably, her natural idiom was the pop song. Her unique achievement was to have twisted this into a genuine expression of the major passions by means of a total disregard of its sugary tunes, or indeed of any tune other than her own few delicately crying elongated notes, phrased like Bessie Smith or Louis Armstrong in sung in a thin, gritty, haunting voice whose natural mood was an undresigned and voluptuous welcome for the pains of love.

Little need be said about her horrifying life, which she described with emotional, though hardly with factual, truth in her autobiography Lady Sings the Blues. After an adolescence in which self-respect was measured by a girl's insistence on picking up the coins thrown to her by clients with her hands, she was plainly beyond help.. It was too late to arrest a career of systematic embittered self-immolation. To be born with both beauty and self-respect in the Negro ghetto of Baltimore in 1951 was too much of a handicap, even without rape at the age of ten and drug-addiction in her teens. But, while she destroyed herself, she sang, unmelodious, profound and heartbreaking. It is impossible not to weep for her, or not to hate the world which made her what she was.

36. What is the main focus of the passage?
    A. To find the reasons behind Billie Holiday's death.
    B. The passage tells how Billie Holiday's death is not grieved by anyone.
    C. The passage is an appreciation of Billie Holliday's life and achievements as a singer.
    D. To give an account of her struggle as a singer.
    E. To describe Billie Holiday's wrecked life, by giving an account of her rise and her destruction.
37. What according to the writer was the cause of her death?
    A. She died by committing suicide since she was not happy with her downfall as a singer.
    B. She was forced to death by other singers.
    C. She indulged in ruining her life by giving herself up to drugs and drinks when her career as a singer was on a decline.
    D. She had an overdose of drugs, which became toxic.
    E. She was suffering from some illness.
38. What cannot be understood from the last paragraph of the passage?
    A. Her career was launched by reliable and accomplished producers.
    B. She was praised for her art equally by expert judges as well as people.
    C. In her autobiography, she described her life with sentimental and passionate truth.
    D. She was gifted with good looks.
    E. Her style of music was different from others in terms of the treatment of tunes.
39. What can be a suitable title for the passage?
    A. Billie Holiday: Wreckage of a Great Singer
    B. Billie Holiday: A Great Singer
    C. Billie Holiday: A Lost Talent
    D. Billie Holiday: End of an Era
    E. Billie Holiday: A Singer of the Blues
40. Which of the following statements is beyond the scope of the passage?
    A. Billie Holiday would be remembered more than other persons who have long obituaries written about them.
    B. Pain, bitterness and surrender were reflected in Billie's voice.
    C. Billie did not have the money to buy her drinks, which led her to depression and isolation.
    D. Billie had not accepted pain, sorrow and suffering present in her profession.
    E. Billie had lost her money as well as looks.

Saving energy means saving money. Home owners and renters know this basic fact, but they often don't know what kinds of adjustments they can make in their homes and apartments that will result in savings. For those willing to spend some time and money to reap long-term energy savings, an energy audit is the way to go. An energy auditor will come into your home and assess its energy efficiency. The auditor will pinpoint areas of your home that use the most energy and offer solutions to lower your energy use and costs. Trained energy auditors know what to look for and can locate a variety of flaws that may be resulting in energy inefficiency, including inadequate insulation, construction flaws, and uneven heat distribution. There are quicker and less costly measures that can be taken as well. One way to save money is to replace incandescent lights with fluorescents. This can result in a savings of more than 50% on your monthly lighting costs. When it's time to replace old appliances, it's wise to spend a bit more for an energy-efficient model, and be sure that you are taking advantage of energy-saving settings already on your current refrigerator, dishwasher, washing machine,or dryer. Windows provide another opportunity to cut your energy costs. Caulk old windows that might be leaky to prevent drafts, and choose double-paned windows if you're building an addition or replacing old windows. Most areas of your home or apartment offer opportunities to save energy and money. The results are significant and are well worth the effort.

31. Which of the following ideas is NOT included in this passage?
A. You can reduce your $130 monthly lighting costs to $65 by using fluorescent bulbs instead of incandescent.
B. Double-paned windows can cut energy costs.
C. Your local energy company will send an energy auditor at your request.
D. Some appliances have energy-saving settings.
E. None of the above.

32. Which of the following best expresses the main idea of this passage?
A. There are many things a homeowner or renter can do to save energy and money.
B. Hiring an energy auditor will save energy and money.
C. Homeowners and renters don't know what they can do to save energy and money.
D. Replacing windows and light bulbs are well worth the effort and cost.
E. None of the above.

33. According to the passage, which of the following would an energy auditor NOT do?
A. Check for construction flaws.
B. Look for problems with heat distribution.
C. Offer solutions to lower your energy costs.
D. Locate a variety of flaws that may result in energy inefficiency and fix them.
E. None of the above.

34. According the passage, double-paned windows
A. are energy efficient.
B. should only be used as replacement windows.
C. should only be used in new additions to homes.
D. will lower your heating costs by 50%.
E. None of the above.

35. What should be the title of the passage?
A. A brief guide to energy saving.
B. Energy Auditors
C. How to be wise

D. Window panes or Incandescents?
E. None of the above.

Nothing shows up the schizophrenia of the Indian mind in the face of this challenge than that the two principal leaders of the national struggle for independence Mahatma Gandhi and Mr. Nehru should have come to contrary conclusions. The Mahatma was for an outright rejection of the western civilization, which is often described as Satanic. Mr. Nehru was for all-out industrialization. Both spoke from utter conviction and were extremely articulate in stating their positions. But neither of them thought it worth his while to grapple with the troublesome details when it came to making the reality conform to the vision.

The Mahatma was, of course, most meticulous about detail and when he undertook a job, whether it was the spread of the spinning wheel, revival of village industries or helping the Harijans, he did not regard the smallest matter pertaining to the concerned organization or an individual grievance beneath his personal attention. It was a different story, however, with translating his larger vision of a non-violent society into a blueprint.

He enunciated the general principal very forcefully. But such details as the state structure the new society would build and the social legislation it would undertake, the precise industrial policy it would pursue or the defense policy it would opt for, he left alone or dealt with in bits and pieces. Did he fear that his vision would suffer by raising all these issues at one go? Or did he realize long before the day of India's tryst with destiny that he would not count on anyone even among his closest colleagues in the Congress to back him?

Mr. Nehru was in a much better position to carry out his ideas. But the very Constitution-making process became a formal exercise. There was no attempt to think in terms of institutions, which while preserving the substance of democracy, would contain populist pressures, make government more business-like and more productive of results and make for easy and cheap access to justice. But that does not detract from the processes of decline. The proliferation of slums had begun, and small groups were already hogging up the larger part of the gains of development. No concerted attempt was made to close the loopholes in land laws and little was done to make school education relevant to the needs of a developing society. The language policy was left to flounder.

It is not surprising that the Indian genius who excelled in production myths, which created works of sculpture 'which endow the spirit with a body' and a music which enthralls the mind as well as the spirit, was often at a loss in facing up to the problems of state building. The Indian mind still falters as it tries to come to grips with these problems.

36. What is the main purpose of the writer behind writing this passage?
    A. To bring out the contrast in Nehru's and Gandhi's dreams and vision of India.
    B. To bring out the flaws in Indian democracy.
    C. To trace the reasons behind the disordered state of India as one based on hollow foundation laid by leaders in the past.
    D. To show the impact of Western Civilization on today's India.
    E. To bring out the past as a disordered and mismanaged government as a result of improper implementation of the job undertaken by leaders.
37. What is the main idea expressed in the passage?
    A. The passage expresses the vision and dreams of Indian leaders for a better future.
    B. The passage expresses the shaping up of a disorganized state due to the constricted vision of our leaders.
    C. The passage is an account of a successful democratic set up of the Indian government as a result of the policies made by our leaders.
    D. The passage explains how the Constitution was made and what clauses it included.
    E. The passage gives an account of the mismanaged government due to the formulation of faulty laws.

    B. Nehru's and Gandhi's Vision of India
    C. History of Indian Democracy
    D. Reflections of the Past in the Present India
    E. Lack of Effective Leaders in India Today
39. What are the writer's feelings towards the subject of the passage?
    A. The writer is not satisfied with the present situation of mismanagement.
    B. The writer is comfortable with the medley of conflicting ideas present in today's world.
    C. The writer is nostalgic about the times when Nehru led India.
    D. The writer is depressed because of lack of efforts on part of Indian leaders to implement their ideas into practice.
    E. The writer is unaffected with the past or present.
40. What is the purpose of the writer behind mentioning Mahatma Gandhi and Nehru?
    A. To give an example of effective leadership to today's incompetent leaders.
    B. To explain that they were incapable of putting their vision into practice which has resulted in the present situation?
    C. To bring out a contrast in the thinking of the two leaders towards the industrialization.
    D. To explain their policies and vision they held for all around development of India.
    E. To explain that they had high dreams and vision for the country which could take India to a bright future?

Mental and physical health professionals may consider referring clients and patients to a music therapist for a number of reasons. It seems a particularly good choice for the social worker who is coordinating a client's case. Music therapists use music to establish a relationship with the patient and to improve the patient's health, using highly structured musical interactions. Patients and therapists may sing, play instruments, dance, compose, or simply listen to music. The course of training for music therapists is comprehensive. In addition to formal musical and therapy training, music therapists are taught to discern what kinds of interventions will be most beneficial for each individual patient. Because each patient is different and has different goals, the music therapist must be able to understand the patient's situation and choose the music and activities that will do the most toward helping the patient achieve his or her goals. The referring social worker can help this process by clearly communicating each client's history. Although patients may develop their musical skills, that is not the main goal of music therapy. Any client who needs particular work on communication or on academic, emotional, and social skills, and who is not responding to traditional therapy, is an excellent candidate for music therapy.

    E. None of the above.

A distinction should be made between work and occupation. Work implies necessity; it is something that must be done as contributing to the means of life in general and to one's own subsistence in particular. Occupation absorbs time and energy so long as we choose to give them; it demands constant initiative, and it is its own reward for the average person the element of necessity in work is valuable, for he is saved the mental stress involved in devising outlets for his energy. Work has for him obvious utility, and it bring the satisfaction of tangible rewards.. There are forms of work, of course, which since external compulsion is reduced to a minimum, are hardly to be differentiated from occupation. The artist, the imaginative writer, the scientist, the social worker, for instance, find their pleasure in the constant spontaneous exercise o creative energy and the essential reward of their work is in the doing of it. In all work performed by a suitable agent there must be a pleasurable element, and the greater the amount of pleasure that can be associated with work, the better. But for most people the pleasure of occupation needs the addition of the necessity provided in work. It is better for them to follow a path of employment marked out for them than to have to find their own. We shall have to put the emphasis on the work – providing rather than the goods – providing aspect of the economic process. In the earlier and more ruthless days of capitalism the duty of the economic system to provide work was overlooked The purpose of competitive enterprise was to realize a profit. When profit ceased or was curtailed, production also ceased or was curtailed. Thus the workers, who were regarded as units of labor forming part of the costs of production, were taken on when required and dismissed when not required. They hardly thought of demanding work as a right. In a socialist system it is assumed that they will be treated with genuine consideration, for, the making of profit not being essential, central planning will not only adjust the factors of production to the best advantage but will secure regularity of employment. But has the socialist thought about what he would do if owing to technological advance, the amount of human labor were catastrophically reduced? So far as I know, he has no plan beyond drastically lining the hours of work, and sharing out as much work as there may be. And, of course, he would grant monetary relief to those who were actually unemployed. But has he considered what would be the moral effect of life imagined as possible in the highly mechanized state of future? Has he thought of the possibility of bands of unemployed and under-employed workers marching on the capital to demand not income (which they will have) but work?
